Unhappy with your present job with a pay that doesn't compensate with your skills and abilities? It's time to seek greener pastures! Most of the popular jobs in the United States today have an entry-level salary of at least $50,000. What follows is a list of 50k plus jobs that you may want to consider. Who knows, one or two of them may match your specific skills.

Physical Therapist

Physical therapy, with a typical starting salary of $52,573, is a career with a huge salary potential. This job may satisfy your professional and financial growth, especially if your interests are human anatomy and health care. Physical therapists who specialize in back or hand therapy have more chances of getting hired and earning beyond $50k.

Veterinarian

Pet lovers can make a good living out of treating animals. The average entry-level salary of veterinarians is $59,084. Over time, vets enjoy the distinction of having one of the most popular jobs because of the increased interest in pet care and animal research in the field of veterinary medicine.

Investment Banking Analyst

If solving mathematical problems is your cup of tea and financial investment is your passion, you may want to consider shifting your career into the investment banking industry. Investment banking analysts earn an average starting salary of almost $60,000, making this profession a lucrative one.

Electrical Engineer

Engineers, especially electrical engineers, are highly marketable. In fact, the demand for this profession is very high. Many companies are in need of young electrical engineers, whose specialty is using electricity to transmit energy needed for machines or equipment to run. And companies are willing to pay more than $50,000 as entry-level salary and as much as $80,000 plus for experienced electrical engineers.
